

Working from the office is best for your employees and your company.

- ★ Homeworking makes it harder to concentrate, creates distractions to our routines, and disrupts communication
- ★ Mental health issues are on the rise. Concerns include loneliness, anxiety, burnout, and a lack of inclusiveness
- ★ Innovation, collaboration, mentoring, and team-building ALL suffer from remote work as tech struggles to replace physical interaction
- ★ Recruiting and onboarding new employees remotely has major shortcomings, with half of recruiters reporting cultural misalignment
- ★ High-density floorplan configurations are reversing course as businesses increase space as much as 50% to implement social distancing
